

The cello duo Anna Olivia Amaya Farias and Fabian Sturm was founded in 2021, after the two musicians met during their studies in Paris.

Since then, they have been performing together across a wide range of concert venues and festivals, captivating audiences with their expressive interpretations and musical dialogue. Their performances have also been featured by NDR Television.

Based in Hamburg, the duo is supported by Live Music Now, an organization that brings live performances to people who are unable to attend concerts — including those living temporarily or permanently in hospitals and social institutions.